EDITOR'S NOTE
編集部より

As some of you know, I do random projects between publications. Last year I decided to do a spread on the Megaroad, one of the first interstellar colony ships from the Chōjikū Yōsai Macross (Super Dimension Fortress Macross) series. I proved to me popular. Earlier this year, I did another one. This time it was the Nupetiet-Vergnitzs, a Zentraedi battleship from the same series.

After some feedback from the projects, one person asked if I could do something from Macross Delta, a later iteration of the series. Honestly, I only watched a few of the episodes, but surely "why not." I do have interest with the characters Mirage and Mikumo. At first, I thought I didn't have books on Delta, then I remembered that I bought one book when the series first aired, Macross Delta Character Design Works. I'll be recreating the book partially, just like The Five Star Stories: Chronicle 2007 book I partially recreated in English. I'm open to commissions and/or collaborations.

The Forsaken Saintess and Her Foodie Roadtrip in Another World

Vil cv: Ono, Yūki

"He's the Ogre-Dragon 'Dragul'—the first person I met in this other world (I absolutely refuse to count the jerks who kicked me out!). He's a highly skilled adventurer and the leader of 'Smorgasbord.' Sure, he's got a fierce look and burns through energy fast, but he's a gentleman—kind, strong and handsome to boot! He is a total feast for the eyes. He's definitely someone I want to root for! Oh, and he loves eating delicious food."

Rin Takanashi cv: Chiba, Shōya

"I'm Rin Takanashi—recently summoned to another world, only to be banished in a split second. My hobbies include solo camping, cooking, and TRPGs (Tabletop Role-Playing Games), but now I'm living an actual RRPG (Real-Life Role-Playing Game)! The fact that I can hunt, cook, and eat my own food is just the best! I'll do my best as the cook and porter for the adventurer party 'Smorgasbord!' Oh, and apparently, I'm a Saint, too."

Oh wow! I didn't think this manga would ever become an anime. I was surely surprised back in May when I heard about this. So lets set back a second. I first saw Suterare Seijo no Isekai Gohantabi: Kakure Sukiru de Kanpingu Kā o Shōkan Shimashitai (The Forsaken Saintess and Her Foodie Roadtrip in Another World) on one of the AI story narration channels on YouTube probably about a month before. The main character was female and the premise seemed interesting so I decided to watch it. As bad as these channels are at narration, I understood the basic story, but I took it with a grain of salt. I tried to look for an official English translation, but one doesn't exist which I found strange. In more than half the time, there was already an English version being published.

Rin Takanashi is a woman in her thirties who is passionate about solo camping, fishing, outdoor life, and cooking. Sounds like Gen from Futari Solo Camp. She is suddenly summoned to a fantasy world as a potential Saintess—alongside a high-school girl. The kingdom's prince and summoners deem Rin's skills (Survival/Passive and Motor House) as trash and immediately exiled to a remote wilderness while keeping the pretty high-school girl instead. Rin discovers her skills are highly practical for her interest and lifestyle. The "Motor House" lets her summon a fully equipped, magical camper van (large living space, kitchen, amenities and more importantly, protection) whenever she's outdoors. Her "Survival" skill helps her assess dangers and adapt to harsh environments. This skill is passive, therefore it's always on. She decides to embrace her hobbies and embark on a leisurely foodie road trip across the new world. That same day while she was fishing at the nearby lake, Rin happened to "catch" Vil…which could be spelled a few ways, but let's go this this.

Vil's is the leader of the party is known as "Smorgasbord (from the anime)" and provides a contrasting personality to Rin's optimistic nature. It's a close-knit group of mostly non-human adventurers united by their enormous appetites and shared love of good food…which is the main premise of this anime rather than constant fighting like other isekai. Before Rin joined them, they were skilled fighters but notoriously poor cooks, which made her arrival especially welcome. Vil is an "ikemen" ogre (or that's what Rin calls him initially) warrior who serves as the party's frontline fighter. Silver-haired and horned, he is strong, gentlemanly and protective, with a particularly high metabolism that leaves him constantly hungry. He is the one who first invites Rin to join as their cook and porter, and a mutual romantic attraction gradually develops between them. Aria is the party's scout and combatant, an arachne (spider-person) who fights skillfully with silk threads. Beautiful and affectionate—especially toward Rin, which sometimes sparks jealousy—she is happily married to Ed. Ed's the group's alchemist and support mage. He's cheerful and friendly overall, deeply devoted to Aria and can become quite jealous when she grows close to others. Senon is an elf priest who handles healing and support magic while also fighting with a mace…when needed. He has a refined, somewhat ethereal appearance yet shares the others' hearty appetite and provides steady reliability for the group. Finally, there's Gomamiso, a young winged cat that joins later after a dungeon encounter. Highly attached to Rin, he can change size and occasionally serves as a mount and as a mascot, adding a lighthearted and loyal presence to the party. Rin can talk and understand Gomamiso's "meowing" as normal talk while others hear only the "meowing."

Smorgasbord functions as a well-balanced adventuring party with their fighitng roles complement each other—Vil on the front line, Aria handling scouting and control, Senon providing healing and support, and Ed contributing alchemy and utility—while Rin takes care of logistics, cooking and mobility through her camper van. Their daily life and happiness revolve heavily around food; meals prepared by Rin become a central bonding activity and a major source of morale. The group has a warm, family-like atmosphere and quickly accepts Rin as one of their own. The other members notice the growing feelings between Rin and Vil and generally support or gently tease the pair. Aria and Ed supply ongoing married-couple comedy through their affection and occasional jealousy, Senon offers a calmer presence and Gomamiso contributes cute energy. Overall, the party balances capable adventuring with a relaxed, food-centered road-trip lifestyle, making them a cohesive and affectionate unit rather than a purely professional group.

The anime heavily reminds me of T*ondemo Sukiru de Isekai Hōrō Meshi* (Campfire Cooking in Another World with My Absurd Skill) which is another anime with the main premise of cooking food in isekai. I enjoyed Suterare Seijo no Isekai Gohantabi particularly for its easygoing, low-stakes road-trip atmosphere, the focus on cooking and camping, and Rin as an intelligent, positive adult character in her thirties prioritizing enjoying life over power or drama like other isekai's. I was also drawn to the party's family-like dynamics and lighthearted tone. Other than that, I did find the pacing a bit slow. Overall, I think the anime is a little average for an isekai, but the camper van did have an interesting premise. Even though, this would be a good watch until the end…unveiling a surprise. ❖ Kayla Ashton

SEIHANTAINA KIMITOBOKU

You and I Are Polar Opposites

When the first season came out back in the beginning of the year, I overlooked this. Friends whom I've talked have recommended me to watch this anime. They said that if I liked watching Dosanko Gal wa Namara Menkoi from two years ago, this anime should be right my alley because of the similarities. The season was already more than half way through when I decided to watch it, but I stopped myself because there was a second season coming out in the summer. So I waited until then. I was not disappointed.

So basically, Seihantai na Kimi to Boku (You and I Are Polar Opposites) centers around high school students Miyu Suzuki (outgoing, cheerful, energetic and often anxious about fitting in or what others think of her) and Yūsuke Tani (stoic, quiet, introverted and bluntly honest without much concern for social expectations). They are classroom polar opposites who develop mutual feelings for each other. Miyu eventually confesses, they begin dating, and the series follows their relationship—including awkward first dates, misunderstandings arising from their differences and growth. While the anime centers around them, there are other developing relationships (such as those involving classmates like Shūji Taira, Shino Azuma, Kentarō Yamada and Natsumi Nishi) within their group of friends which are just as interesting.

Let start off with the main couple. Miyu is energetic, outgoing and highly conscious of others' opinions, while Tani is quiet, stoic and bluntly honest without worrying about social expectations. Miyu has had a crush on him for a while and often teases him to get his attention. Yūsuke becomes more open and considerate (researching how to talk to a girlfriend, trying new experiences), while Miyu learns that Yūsuke genuinely likes her as she is and listens carefully. Early on, they walk home together and Yūsuke unexpectedly holds her hand after their hands brush. The next day, a misunderstanding arises when she hesitates about their status in front of classmates. She then gathers her courage, chases after him and confesses. Yūsuke reciprocates, admitting he also likes spending time with her and never knew what to say before. They become an official couple very quickly. They grow comfortable calling each other by given names, share more emotional vulnerability and reach physical milestones like their first kiss. As a side note, it is uncommon for classmates to refer to each other by their given names unless they have a close friendship.

Tani, Yūsuke

cv: Uemura, Yūto

He's a quiet guy, but he can express his opinions clearly. Miyu always spoke to me in a casual manner, but she kept giving what seemed like curt responses.

Suzuki, Miyu

cv: Sasahara, Yū

A girl full of energy who nonetheless worries about what others think of her. She admires Yūsuke—who, unlike her, remains unfazed and consistent in her attitude toward everyone—but finds herself unable to interact with her normally, often resorting to pestering or teasing her instead.

Yamada, Kentarō

cv: Iwata, Anji

A classmate of Miyu and Yūsuke; an upbeat guy who loves to goof around. He's a mood-maker with an open, straightforward personality who quickly closes the distance between himself and others, easily making friends with anyone. He's the type who speaks his mind honestly and without pretense.

Nishi, Natsumi

cv: Ōmori, Kokoro

Natsumi is in the next class over, and although she is quiet and reserved, she is actually very funny. Extremely shy, she is nervous and has trouble communicating with her classmates other than her friend Rikako, and even when he tries to start a conversation, he is troubled by his tempo being off.

Next in the friend group to form a relationship is Kentarō Yamada and Natsumi Nishi. Kentarō is loud, quirky, air-headed and socially outgoing (one of Miyu's longtime friends). Natsumi is extremely shy, socially anxious, overthinks conversations and rarely makes eye contact (she works on the library committee with Yūsuke and is best friends with Hōnda). He first notices her when she laughs at one of his jokes during a study session. He's drawn to unexpected laughter and starts seeking her out more. He asks for her contact info so they can text (which feels less intimidating for her), and they gradually become closer through school events, texts, and group hangouts.

Their progress is slower and more tentative than Yūsuke and Miyu's. On their first official date (Chinatown area), Natsumi is very nervous (even removing accessories), but Kentarō encourages her, they manage a real conversation, and he helps with a hair clip, noting she'll be able to look him in the eyes more easily. Natsumi eventually confesses first (surprising Kentarō, who drops his phone), and they become a couple. They continue opening up; Natsumi grows more confident in showing affection and initiates a kiss during a private moment. Their relationship mirrors the main couple's opposites-attract theme (outgoing boy and shy girl) but with more focus on Natsumi's anxiety and Kentarō's straightforward enthusiasm.

And finally, the most "you want to tear your hair out" relationship…Shūji Taira and Shino Azuma. This is the slowest-burn and most emotionally layered pairing. Shūji is cynical, highly self-deprecating and burdened by middle-school experiences that left him with low self-worth and a tendency to overanalyze social hierarchies. Shino is outgoing and popular-seeming on the surface but has her own issues with past relationships (being treated poorly or used by others) and often lets people walk over her.

They knew each other from middle school. Shino has always been kind to him (sharing an umbrella, remembering his birthday, etc.), and they share a playful, teasing banter where Shūji can let his guard down more than with others. Development is gradual and rooted in mutual emotional support. Shino begins to realize she has romantic feelings for Shūji (despite him not being her usual type), becoming happier and more genuine around him. Shūji notices her positive changes and eventually realizes she may like him, but his insecurities and fear of rejection/ruining the friendship cause him to pull back or avoid her at times.

They do grow noticeably closer and share heartfelt moments, become more comfortable and reach the point of using each other's given names (a milestone the other couples also hit). There was no full love confession between the two, though they are clearly become important to each other and the foundation is strongly set for something more. It's treated as a realistic, baggage-heavy connection that prioritizes healing and understanding over a neat romantic payoff.

From what I read, viewers and reviewers particularly praise its approach to romance: the main couple gets together early, shifting the focus to realistic relationship growth, communication and everyday moments rather than prolonged tension or misunderstandings. Many describe it as a wholesome rom-com. The ensemble cast and side relationships, including Kentarō and Natsumi as well as Shūji and Shino receive meaningful development and are often as popular as—or more popular than—the central pair for some audiences. Characters are frequently well-liked and relatable, with Miyu's chaotic energy, Yūsuke's quiet sincerity and the supporting cast's insecurities feeling grounded.

Minor criticisms exist but represent a minority view. There were occasional complaints mention overuse of chibi gags interrupting romantic scenes and other minor complaints. Overall, the positives far outweigh the negatives. Having almost completed the Season 2 with only two episodes left to watch, I recommended the series as a feel-good comfort watch for anyone seeking a sweet high-school romance free of the tropes that frustrate many anime fans. ❖ Ed Gomez

STORMCRAFT PC Launches Valkyrie Series Gaming Desktops

Expanded lineup combines NVIDIA GeForce RTX 50 Series and select Radeon RX 9070 XT graphics with AMD Ryzen X3D and Intel Core Ultra 7 processors, 360 mm liquid cooling and a customizable panoramic display chassis.

STORMCRAFT PC, a California gaming PC brand founded by gamers and engineers, today announced the launch and multi-channel availability of new Valkyrie Series gaming desktops through Amazon, Best Buy, Newegg and the official STORMCRAFT PC webstore. The expanded lineup features NVIDIA® GeForce RTX™ 50 Series and AMD Radeon™ RX 9070 XT graphics, paired with AMD Ryzen™ 7 X3D and Intel® Core™ Ultra 7 processors.

The four featured configurations span AMD Ryzen 7 7800X3D and Ryzen 7 9800X3D processors, the Intel Core Ultra 7 processor 270K Plus, AMD Radeon RX 9070 XT graphics, and NVIDIA GeForce RTX 5070 and RTX 5080 graphics. Each featured system includes DDR5 6000 MHz RGB memory, PCIe Gen 4 NVMe storage, a 360 mm liquid CPU cooler, an 850-watt 80 Plus Gold power supply and seven ARGB chassis fans.

Designed for enthusiast gamers, creators and streamers, the Valkyrie Series combines current-generation gaming hardware, advanced cooling and a panoramic showcase chassis. With the back-to-school season approaching, the lineup provides performance-focused desktop options for gaming, content creation, streaming and everyday computing.

"Valkyrie was developed for gamers who want their PC to deliver powerful performance while becoming a distinctive part of their setup. The customizable display stage and modular chassis let users personalize their system without compromising cooling or performance," said Frank Lee, Founder and CEO of STORMCRAFT PC. "With the series now available through Amazon, Best Buy, Newegg and our official web store, customers can select the performance configuration and shopping channel that best fit their gaming, content-creation and everyday computing needs."

Valkyrie Chassis Combines Personalization with Practical System Design

The Valkyrie Series features a panoramic dual-glass chassis designed to showcase internal components, coordinated ARGB lighting and collectible displays. Seven ARGB fans and a 360 mm liquid CPU cooler support airflow and thermal management during gaming, streaming and content-creation workloads.

Additional chassis features include:

- Quick-Swap Figure Panel: Provides convenient access for changing collectible figures.
- Dedicated Figure Display Stage: Features an adjustable spotlight that highlights collectibles alongside the system's internal components.
- Adjustable GPU Support Bracket: Accommodates various graphics card sizes while helping reduce GPU sag.
- Hidden Storage Vault: Conceals cables and supports up to three additional drives and power supplies measuring up to 200 mm.

Depending on the selected configuration, the lineup also includes Wi-Fi 6 or Wi-Fi 7, Bluetooth connectivity, DDR5 6000 MHz RGB memory and up to 2 TB of PCIe Gen 4 NVMe storage.

Each featured Valkyrie desktop is built and tested in California and backed by STORMCRAFT PC's standard warranty, including three-year labor coverage, two-year parts coverage and lifetime technical support. Optional extended warranty plans are also available.

Pricing and availability are subject to change. Inventory may vary by retailer and location.

LET'S BUY THE LAND and CULTIVATE IT IN A DIFFERENT WORLD

異世界で土地を買って農場を作ろう

Let's buy the land and cultivate in different world

Norio Itonami is an ordinary Japanese salaryman who was suddenly summoned to a fantasy world as a potential hero. When his "skills" appear nonexistent or useless to the summoners, they discard him. Instead of returning home or being forced into battle, he negotiates for a remote, no-man's land not claimed by any kingdom so he can start a quiet farm life. He renames himself Kidan to better fit the new world. His true ability is called "Master of Supremacy," is invisible to others at first doe the fact it was bestowed on my before the summon by Hephaestus. It lets him use any tool or item at maximum efficiency: farming implements, fishing rods, cooking utensils, construction tools and more. With this gift he clears land, grows crops, builds a home, and cooks exceptional food.

After settling on his remote plot of land, Kidan begins cultivating the wilderness using his hidden gift—the Master of Supremacy ability that maximizes the effectiveness of any tool he uses. One day, while fishing by the seaside to secure food, he hooks something unexpectedly large and powerful. When he reels it in, he discovers he has caught a beautiful mermaid—Platy.

Platy is a princess of the mermaid kingdom, a skilled magic user especially proficient in potion-making, and a proud, high-spirited individual. Among merfolk, being caught on a fishing line by a land-dweller is considered an extreme humiliation. The incident shatters her pride so thoroughly that she believes she can no longer return to her people without disgrace. Rather than simply leaving, she confronts Kidan, holds him responsible for her predicament, and forcefully declares that he must support and care for her from then on—effectively announcing that she will become his wife according to the circumstances of her capture.

To make life on land practical, she takes a special medicine that allows her to temporarily transform her lower body from a fish tail into human legs. Thus begins their cohabitation on the farm: a sudden, one-sided "pushy wife" arrangement born more from mermaid custom, shame, and practicality than from romance.

Their relationship starts as an awkward, imposing partnership but gradually develops into a genuine and complementary bond. Kidan, kind, sincere, and practical, accepts the situation with surprising composure. He provides food (especially his excellent cooking, which Platy quickly comes to love), shelter and a stable daily life. Platy, impulsive and strong-willed, contributes her own skills—particularly her expertise in magical potions and medicine—and takes an active role in running the household and farm. She often acts in a manner similar to a village chief figure once the community expands.

Their relationship mixes light comedy with growing affection. Platy can be demanding and quick to act on her impulses, while Kidan remains steady and accommodating. Over time, the forced marriage evolves into mutual reliance and care: she refers to him with endearments, they discuss and fulfill expected marital roles, and they support each other through the various visitors and complications that arrive at the farm (including political fallout from her royal status). Platy's background as a princess later draws attention from other factions, but the core of their relationship remains the everyday partnership of farming, cooking, problem-solving, and building a home together.

Supporting cast includes the young dragon Veil, the No Life King (an undead neighbor intrigued by Kidan's skill), various demons (such as Astres, Belena, Batemy, and higher figures like Zedan), orcs, goblins and occasional visitors from human or other factions. The group expands organically through hospitality and shared meals.

Let's Buy the Land and Cultivate It in a Different World (Isekai de Tochi wo Katte Nōjō wo Tsukurō) is a pleasant entry in the farming/slow-life isekai niche—following a discarded "useless" summon who turns a barren plot into a thriving home through clever tool mastery, exceptional cooking and an expanding circle of unusual companions—starting with a mermaid wife. Ideal for readers seeking escapism, light comedy and the satisfaction of building a peaceful life rather than conquering kingdoms or grinding levels. The series remains ongoing, with both the light novels and manga continuing to expand Kidan's frontier farm and its colorful residents. ❖ Eiji Tanaka

Suzuno, Reina

A recently transferred high school student. Suzuno Reina is constantly misunderstood by those around her because of her look, attitude and mostly the unique way she performs exorcisms without caring about what others think.

Furyō Taimashi Reina
by Otōsama

"What are you looking at? I'll kill you!!!" A barrage of verbal abuse, desks flying out the window and a brutal beatdown delivered by a fist clad in brass knuckles. Class representative Kokoro Mamiya grows concerned about the delinquent-like behavior of Reina Suzuno—a transfer student sporting blonde hair, a souvenir jacket and loose socks. But then, Kokoro witnesses the truth. The actions that appeared to be bullying or violent outbursts were actually a unique exorcism method—and she watches as Reina vanquishes an earthbound spirit that had been haunting Kokoro herself! It turns out Reina is a master exorcist so formidable that even urban legends like "Hanako-san of the Toilet" and "Mary-san" tremble in fear before her!
